the city north of One Hundred and Sixteenth street and Manhattan avenue with six miles of tracks, and it is said the Metropolitan Traction Company is willing to pay $100,000 for it. The Third avenue cable line is after the same franchise. Neither Company has been able to make satisfactory arrangements and the matter has been hung up in committee for six months.

The Aldermanic Railroad Committee had the subject under consideration under Croker's regime as boss of Tammany Hail. At that time it was reported that the Third Avenue Railroad Company would get a favorable decision. A hitch occurred. It was said that the deal fell through on account of Croker, and loud were the protests of the Aldermen because Croker interfered. There was some talk of granting the franchise to the Third Avenue Company in spite of Croker, but the Aldermen feared that they could not pass the ordinance over Gilroy's veto, and so they shelved it.

over Gliroy's veto, and so they shelved it.

Since Croker's retirement, the Aldermen have apparently been seen individually, and means have been found by the Metropolitan Traction Company to overcome their opposition, for the Aldermanic sentiment seems to be in favor of the Traction Company now.

The Aldermanic Railroad Committee gave a hearing to-day on the application of the last-named Company to extend its Ninth avenue ine from One Hundreth and Ninth avenue in one Hundreth and Sixteenth street. There the road is to connect with a cross-town branch of the Lexington avenue line now building.

This application is preliminary to the hearing on the application for the extension aboveOne Hundredand Sixteenth street, for which the Metropolitan and Third avenue lines have been fighting. The Traction Company proposes to build a connecting line from that point through and to the end of Manhattan and St. Nicholas avenues and Kingsbridge road.

and St. Nicholas avenues and Kingsbridge road.

The Third avenue Company proposes to do the same, and both roads offer to carry passengers over all their connecting lines for one fare of five cents.

The franchise is a valuable one. It would give the Metropolitan Traction Company the advantage of connecting lines over the whole length of Manhattan Island. John D. Crimmins, the head of the traction syndicate, was present in person at the meeting to-day to advocate his Company's cause. He appeared as a property-owner and not as an official.

Other property-owners who supported official.

Other property-owners who supported the application were James McCreery, Oscar C Ferris, F. P. Forster, J. M. Williams and S. N. Penfield. It is not expected that the Committee will refuse Mr. Crimmins what he asks for.

GAVE UP THE FIGHT.

An Able-Bodied Man Begs to Go to the Poorhouse. Terence Wallace, an able-bodied man of middle age, who said that he was a plane polisher, and had been employed by the Haines Piano Company twenty-two years, appeared before Jus tice Voorhis, in the Jefferson Market Polies Court and said that he was out of work, couldn't find any, and was ready to throw up the sponge and go to the boorhouse.

The man seemed decent and was so evidently suffering from want that the Court took his case seriously and remanded him to jail, subject to disposition by the Commissioner of Charities and Correction.

Wallace said that a hard Winner was
of before him, work seemed impossible to the obtain, and he would rather spend the
